Subject: Contrary Interview Questions

Here is a short starting point list of what Joy Fowlin of PBS' To The Contrary plans to ask during your interview tomorrow:

Questions for Gov. Palin

1. Alaska is known for being a kind of macho state, why do you think they elected both a woman governor and US Senator?
2. How do you balance your duties as governor and raise four kids at the same time?
3. Your son enlisted in the Army on September 11th of last year. How has his decision influenced the way you feel about the war in Iraq?
4. What do you want to leave this position accomplishing? What changes do you want to see happen in Alaska to help out families?
5. Your name has been thrown out there for VP. Do you have aspirations to be in the national spotlight?

(Saturday, Feb. 23 at 2:30 pm in the Justice Room -- this information is in your binder.)

RR called your ANC office today looking for me. I returned his call and he wanted to clarify that I would be willing to speak at the Repub convention on Fri morning March 14. He said in an earlier conversation that you were welcome to speak at the same time as I (that was the first question I asked him a week ago when I was invited to speak, whether you had been invited as well--to which I didn't get a definitive answer). That's when he had said you were welcome to speak ahead of and at same agenda time as me--so he avoided telling me straight out whether you had been directly invited. Were you??

Subject: Real ID - Edu. funding - CON repeal

Governor,

Attached are some documents you won't be able to open from your blackberry, so I've cc'd the D.C. office just in case they are able to pass them along. I don't consider any of the documents attached to be of high importance. Here's the brief rundown.

Pages 1-2: House Joint Resolution 19, by Rep. Coghill, expresses strong opposition to the Real ID Act. Rep. Coghill was told that you were at NGA and that Real ID might come up in discussion. He wanted you to know of the very latest effort in the legislature.

Page 3: Rep. Keller's notes on why he cannot support the education bill, HB 273, which is likely up for a floor vote on Monday. I met with him today and he is seriously concerned that you know exactly why he's opposing the bill and…most importantly…that you are not blindsided by his vote. His background with education won't allow him to support the bill and he scratched out some notes to explain why. He will not use that specific page for his speech on the floor.

Page 4: These are Rep. Keller's notes he plans to read on the house floor when a vote on HB 273 occurs. They are tame compared to his notes from the previous page. The bottom line is that he'll vote no - but, he'll do anything possible to protect you in the process. He couldn't emphasize that point enough.

Page 5: Rep. Keller's message on the healthcare bill, specifically the attempt to repeal CON. I'm not going to explain further, as I believe you've already told Tibbles your decision on the way forward.

Stacie and I finished up our meetings with both Senate and House HESS committee members except for Rep. Fairclough and Senator Cowdery. Attached is our spreadsheet with comments on what we heard from those members and short bullets from before for you and the Governor.

Summary:

They will not give the Governor the repeal. They want a compromise that doesn't repeal but still adheres to the Gov's core principles such as increasing consumer choice, manage rising costs, using market forces to determine to respond to changes in demographics etc, putting health care in to the hands of doctors and not lobbyists and lawyers,

Subject: problems with information request

Paul,
I haven't been able to reach you to discuss this but i have had three injured workers request their annual reports. The staff in the division Susan Oldacres, and Bob Briggs do not even know what an annual report is. I finally got Susun to go to Ted Burkhart to get one of the requested reports. Could you please explain it to your staff. Also we are interested in knowing if the regulation has changed that would prevent injured workers from seeing and obtaining their annual reports. Thank you for your assistance in this matter. It would also be helpful if the division staff knew about the information within the division. It is ver common to be turned down for various request. I also have to describe to them who may have the information and that it has been requested before. Some times I even have to describe certain book shelves and books contained in the division that hold some of the information. It would be helpful for the staff to know about these things also when people need information from the division. Just the other day a person needed certified documents, we had to explain what certification of documents was and how it was done. I really thought that the division staff was trained in this stuff. Also while on the subject, subpoenas are hard to obtain because no one wants to sign them and they seem unsure if they should be issued. If people cannot get the information they need for their cases it does appear that due process is in tact. Due process is derailed in many ways and these are just a few. There are many more. If any of you really want to meet and discuss these and other issues please contact us so that we can have meaningful discussion.
Thank you for your time and attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
Barbara Williams

Podcasting is the hottest tech tool in education these days but what does it take to do it? Can non-geeks join the fun?

Find out on Tuesday, February 26, at 7 pm EST when you have an opportunity to meet with Bill Lovin, known as "North Carolina Schools' Videographer" since he's filmed documentaries in classrooms and schools for over twenty years and the founder of EstuaryLIVE, a live, interactive webcast field trip to coasts around the country. Bill is also the builder of the Bookhenge on NC State's Wolflands Island in Second Life. We will use the conferencing capabilities there to meet. Search for "NC State Wolflands" to find the island and head to the Bookhenge. You can't miss it.

For non-Second Life citizens, listen to the Internet Radio stream at http://64.34.173.110:8050 and chat with us at www.chatmaker.net/chatap/rooms/livepodcast

This session is a special event planned for the "Learning and Teaching with Web 2.0 Tools" course offered by the New Literacies Collaborative (Friday Institute at NCSU, NC DPI, and NC's Center for 21st Century Skills), but there's plenty of technology here so everyone can join us. Bill is developing a Second Life Island for USDLC and a module for USDLC's Literacy to Learn on podcasting so this will be a great preview.

To learn more, contact Cris Crissman at ccrissma@dpi.state.nc.us.

Bill Lovin, Videographer, Marine Grafics, specializes in Underwater, Natural Science, and Environmental Media Production. He has filmed in over fifty countries around the world producing programs for broadcast, non-profit, and educational markets. Also, a technology visionary, he was honored by The Tech Museum of Innovation in 2002 as an Intel Environmental Award Tech Laureate for his creation of EstuaryLIVE, www.estuarylive.org.

USDLC is a nonprofit, multi-state educational consortium committed to excellence in teaching and learning through blended technologies. USDLC is dedicated to ensuring that all students and educators, regardless of circumstance or geographic location, have equitable access to high quality education opportunities.

Good morning,

On behalf of the Governors' Council on the Homeless, I'd like to welcome you as newly appointed members. You join myself and the other Council members, Commissioners Joe Schmidt, Corrections, Karleen Jackson, Health and Social Services, Walt Monegan, Public Safety, Barbara Thompson, Education and Jeff Jessee, Executive Director of the Alaska Mental Health Trust Authority in a very important effort to provide housing to those Alaskans who find themselves homeless, or on the verge of becoming homeless.

Homelessness is not a character flaw. It is the consequence of the many important social issues that face us; substance abuse, mental illness, domestic violence, lack of affordable housing, catastrophic illness and the movement towards lower paying service related jobs in the economy. We have legislation moving through the legislature to create a housing trust account within AHFC to address the needs of the homeless and affordable housing in general. HB324 and SB231 have been heard in House and Senate HESS committees and Senate Finance. We look forward to our first hearing in House Finance soon. We will keep you updated as to the progress of this legislation and the scheduling for the first Governor's Council meeting.

In the mean time if you have any questions, please give me a call at 330-8452, or call Mark Romick, Director of Planning and Program Development at 330-8274 or mromick@ahfc.state.ak.us and he can give you background information on the Council and its work to date.

Subject: PSEA likely to start ads

Governor & Mike:
Just a heads up that PSEA (troopers and airport safety officers) will likely run some nasty ads this weekend saying the Governor and Commissioner don't care about public safety. Their offer to the State has been 9% + 3%+Anchorage CPI, + 3% + Anchorage CPI. My offer right now is 3%,3%,3% due to all of their requests for additional compensation in various categories, and the unknown fiscal impact of all of them when aggregated.

The arbitrator's award for APEA-SU was only for 5.5%, 3% and 3%. We are trying to be creative in the contract, allowing flexible work schedules where the department finds it appropriate, but their initial offer pyramided the 5% premium pay they get, so that if a trooper was:
Flying a plane in his scuba gear going to a search and rescue with a dog in the plane, he would get 15% premium pay on top of his regular pay. The union has backed off of this as a "concession".
PSEA's tactic is to ask for the outlandish and then attempt to appear conciliatory with an aggressive offer.

I'm hopeful to have good news on the APEA-SU front later today, but I will wait until I see the signatures.

Good news on the supervisor's union contract. The union accepted our offer (based on the arbitrator's award). No more nasty ads or emails from this unit but I hear now the trooper union may start running ads (as soon as this weekend) about their salaries.

Subject: Heads Up--Attorney Client--Wolves/Caribou

Governor:

As you know, the Department of Fish and Game and the Board of Fisheries are currently engaged in predator (wolf) control plans that involve public permittees using aircraft in five areas in the state. These are associated with implementation of the intensive management law (and the same-day airborne law).

There is also statutory provision (AS 16.05.783 (e)) for employees of the department to be directly involved in predator control, using aircraft (including helicopters), if authorized by the Board of Game or the commissioner.

The Board of Game is meeting in Fairbanks beginning February 29, and lasting through March 10. One discussion item will be development and implementation of an additional predator control plan to assist caribou calf survival in the South Alaska Peninsula herd (near the Port Moller area). The situation for the SAPCH is extreme, and the plan would likely entail department employees deployed in helicopters during a two-week period just after calving (e.g., June 1 – 15) to remove any wolves that would threaten to prey on the calves during this particularly vulnerable period. This is more like a biological emergency than a general attempt to increase prey abundance. And, there is no readily available public in the area to conduct effective efforts.

I believe that this is an instance where the department's judgment is called for, and I am prepared to exercise that judgment based upon biological guidance from our wildlife management experts, discussions with the Board of Game, and legal advice from our AG's office. I do not believe that you as Governor need to be directly involved in the decision-making. But, of course, even this proposed plan will generate controversy and questions about whether or not you support such an exercise. I remember last spring you asked rhetorically, "Why do I have to make these decisions?" In this case, Governor, I believe you do not need to make the decision. However, I want to make sure you are comfortable with the possibility, and also with having me as commissioner exercise this judgment and authority.

Attached is a more detailed summary of the situation. Unless I hear differently, we will be presenting this plan to the Board of Game at the end of this month (actually, early in March). Once it is presented to the Board, it is public.

Please let me know if you have objections or specific concerns.

Thanks, DL.

Subject: SB 201 Online Checkbook

Division of Finance Director Kim Garnero related this to me:

Second topic -- Michelle Sydeman of Senator Wielechowski's office told me yesterday that Governor Palin recognized her as his staffer, pulled her aside, and told Michelle that she (the Governor) believes this transparency into government (SB 201) should be passed as law.

As an FYI, I had advised Senator Wielechowski that I believed his bill to be redundant to the effort already underway. We are sorting through the confidentiality issues still with the Online Checkbook, and legislation at this point might be premature until we sort all of that out. In addition, as new types of information become available in the future, the State will have to amend the law to include (or not) those types of information.

I just think it will be hard for the State to walk away from providing information publicly once the public gets used to using it. But, if the Governor's position is that she supports the legislation, I will work with Senator Wielechowski's office to try to make it a bill that won't constrain our abilities in the near future.

Kim also said South Dakota is wrestling with the issue and she has been contacted to explain our low-tech, low-cost approach. More and more people are becoming aware of the Online Checkbook, and Kim is contacted sporadically by Alaska reporters trying to figure out how to sort. I can imagine that means that there will be a story or two in the future, as we all thought would happen.

This issue will probably come up during your meeting with Secretary Kempthorne. So, I wanted to make sure that you saw the attached material which describes the Secretary's response to 51 Senators, including Senators Stevens and Murkowski, who wrote him concerning carrying of firearms in national parks and wildlife refuges.
